The Arts & Crafts Movement in Melbourne Margaret CHAPMAN of the Craftsman Bindery, Sassafras, exhibiting at the First Australian Exhibition of Women's Work, 1907

1. THE BINDERY SASSAFRAS

Vic., From the Gully. Watercolour, c. 24 x 15 cm., depicting timber cottage, with garden in fore-ground, flowers around the building, a woman standing in the garden, eucalypts in the background, dated 1909 and signed R. J. H., mounted, framed and glazed. Fitted to the rear of the picture is a printed label This book has been bound by Margaret Chapman at the Craftsman Bindery, Sassafras, with red monogram upper left.

An Anthology Of Australian Verse

Edited By Bertram Stevens. Sydney, Angus And Robertson, 1906. Octavo, olive green reversed calf, yapp edges, watered silk pastedowns, stamped M. C. and dated on rear cover. An attractive relic from the First Australian Exhibition of Women's Work, held at the Exhibition Building, Melbourne, October 23rd to November 30th, 1907, and complete with printed and manuscript catalogue ticket. This book was exhibited in the Book-binding class, by Margaret Chapman of the Craftsman Bindery, Sassafras. This was the largest exhibition of its kind ever undertaken in Australia. The exhibits are principally in the arts and crafts fields, and the catalogue includes early professional women artists such as Edith Alsop, A.M.E. Bale, Margaret Baskerville, May Gibbs, Ruby Lindsay, Ida Rentoul [Outhwaite], Jean Sutherland, Violet Teague, Jessie Trill, and the like.

Together with six titles in bindings stamped by Chapman, and three bindings in the Chapman style (unstamped) from the same collection, including C. J. Dennis's rare 1935 work The Singing Garden. An attractive collection of ten books and one watercolour, showcasing the work of Margaret Chapman, who established the Craftsman Bindery in Melbourne and later Sassafras. $4600

According to Carol Mills's work on Australian Bookbinders and Bookbinding of the Nineteenth Century Chapman won medals for two of the four binding classes at the First Australian Exhibition of Women's Work in 1907.

From the author's own library, which was purchased by us from his grandson at the Curr property near Trundle in 1973.
Curr first visited Melbourne in 1839 and his recollections deal with the early period of squatting before it produced great wealth. On 1841 he was sent from Tasmania to manage Wolfsrag station seventy miles from Melbourne, and he subsequently managed the Tongala, Lower Moira, Colbinabbin, Coragorag and Corop runs, and was involved with his brother in the Corop run. He includes a great deal of material on the local Aborigines, the Bangarang people, studying their customs, rites and languages. It was this interest which led to his later work The Australian Race.

153. George Henry HAYDON

Five Years' Experience in Australia Felix, comprising a short account of its early settlement and its present position, with many particulars interesting to intending emigrants With illustrations by Henry Hainsselin, from sketches made on the spot by the author. London, Hamilton, Adams, & Co., 1846. Octavo, original cloth, a couple of small abrasions to front joint, the Wantrup copy with book label. $1100

Haydon deals sensitively with the Victorian aborigines, defending their culture, abilities and rights. He criticises the system of Aboriginal Protectorates, maintaining that the Protectors were haughty and tyrannical and, as a result, actually detrimental to the Aboriginal people, and that the Chief Protector, G.A. Robinson, was ill-qualified and incompetent. The work also contains a narrative of a journey which he made from Westport to Port Albert, Gippsland, in search of a stock route in 1844 (Walsh and Hooton 108). Ferguson, 4305.

Octavo, pp. xvi, 500, iv ads., frontispiece portrait, folding map, owner's name in ink, gilt and decorated green cloth over bevelled boards, a fine copy. $480

First edition: presentation copy, inscribed by the author on the title-page. "The author visited Australia in 1852, trying his luck at the diggings ...engaged in a hardware business in Geelong ... travelling the Western district of Victoria. After some years he returned to England ... He undertook a second voyage in 1890. The book contains his experiences on both voyages, presenting interesting pictures of Victoria in 1852 and 1890 ... The book is notable as being the only Australian book printed in Bangor, and one of the very few books relating to Australasia printed in Wales". Ferguson 10636.

165. (Illustrated Newspaper)

Australasian Sketcher, Nos. 1 – 187. Melbourne, Wilson and Mackinnon, April 1873 - December 1884. Seven volumes, 187 issues in all (including one duplicate), folio, illustrated with wood-engraved plates and views throughout, many full-page and double-page, six volumes in modern calf, one in half red morocco of the period. $45,000

A long run of Australia's most famous illustrated newspaper. Issued generally at monthly intervals, but occasionally fortnightly, this publication offers us unrivalled detail of life in the boom years of the 1880s. There is extensive coverage of the great Melbourne International Exhibition of 1880. Starting with the planning and construction of the glorious Royal Exhibition Building, this coverage includes the arrival and organisation of the international exhibits, the ceremonies attending the official opening, and the presentation and contents of the various courts. At the same time, Victoria was in the news for the drama of Ned Kelly's exploits, arrest, trial and execution - dramatic events which have become deeply embedded in Australia's psyche. It was this illustrated journal which provided some of the most striking and memorable images of Kelly's life.

Boone, 1838.* Two volumes, octavo, with large folding map with original hand-colouring, fifty-one plates and maps, some hand-coloured, some folding), lithographed titles, a superior set in original cloth, some slackness in the second volume. $3300

First edition. It was on his third expedition in 1836, intended to complete the survey he had begun of the Darling river, that Mitchell moved south from the Murray into the promising south-western portion of Victoria, naming it Australia Felix. He reached the mouth of the Glenelg river, and within a few days "to their mutual surprise, he found the Henty brothers already established at Portland". (A.D.B). Unlike most of the other major accounts of Australian exploration, the work soon went into a second edition: see following item. Ferguson, 2553; Wantrup, 124a.

226. Thomas Livingstone MITCHELL

Three expeditions into the interior of eastern Australia, with descriptions of the recently explored region of Australia Felix. *London, T. & W. 230. [Mooroopna]

Eshcol: Irrigation: Settlement. Mooroopna, Goulburn Valley, Victoria. Melbourne, Rae Bros., Polygraphic Printers, n.d. [1893?]. Quarto, pp. xii + 82, map, illustrated with several woodcuts, and with ten half-page photographic prints, all versos to page 74 are advertisements, many of them illustrated, stapled in original cloth gilt (lettering faded), the rear board stamped with a full-page advertisement for Singer's Sewing Machines, endpapers lightly marked. $1500
Named after a valley in which the early Israelites found specimens of the fruit of the Promised Land, in grapes, pomgranates and figs, Eschol is a proposed settlement four and a half miles west of Mooroopna, and is apparently the project of Mr John McKell. He is offering for sale on time payment a series of ten-acre blocks, watered from the Goulburn Weir, on which a settler could expect to provide for a family of six. The work includes details of fruit and vine growing, beekeeping, and poultry keeping, as well as appropriate house designs and recommended architects. A rare work.
